

Yr3 Learning Letter - Friday 8th December 2017

Martha & Lisa's Class

We travelled to Stonehenge this week from the comfort of our classroom, as we learnt about this amazing monument that was completed in the Bronze Age. The children carried out independent research and then shared their findings with the class.

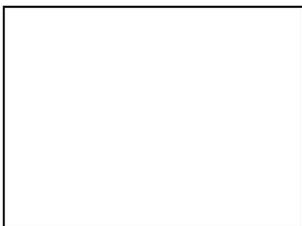

Lots of focused independent writing was done this week as the children wrote their soup recipes. They have worked hard to include all of the necessary grammar and to check each step of the process is detailed and clear.

Martha was absolutely delighted this week with the fabulous maths work done by everybody. We have really mastered short addition and found to be an excellent addition to our addition methods! Subtraction next week!

Despite a rather frustrating time with our survey software this week, the children were able to analyse the data they had collected and draw some conclusions. It was tricky to make sure the statements made connected accurately to the data collected but everyone had a really good go.

In Science the children have been learning about the life cycle of a flowering plant and then bringing together all of their learning about plants and applying it in a challenging context. They were given different geographical/climatic scenarios such as Lila's arid landscape in East Africa, and had to design a plant that would be able to grow and thrive there. The children are also carrying out an investigation in Science to see what happens when you remove different amounts of leaves from a plant. I'm sure they will keep you posted about the results!

In Art the children have been drawing and painting the cyclamen plants used in their Science learning. Hopefully these will turn into a nice Christmas treat - if successful!
