

How to support your child with additional language learning at home

- 1) Recommended websites and apps.
- 2) TV programmes with subtitles.
- 3) Bilingual books.
- 4) Speak to them in the target language, if possible.
- 5) Label items around the home to support vocabulary.

Recommended websites and apps

There are lots of online resources available that children can make the most of. Whether it's using google translate or viewing the Kilmorie School website in another language, there's lots to choose from:

- Duolingo - <https://www.duolingo.com/>
- Language Guide - <http://www.languageguide.org/>
- Hello World - <http://www.hello-world.com/>
- Monde des titounis - <http://www.monedestitounis.fr/index.php> (French only). Click on apprentissage for videos on different vocab topics. Click on lectures for well-known stories translated into French.
- Mind Snacks - <https://www.mindsnacks.com/>

TV programmes with subtitles

Most televisions and online streaming services offer a subtitle option. Children can watch their programmes, whilst reading in the target language.

Spotify or YouTube also have content available in different languages.

Alternatively, www.bandgee.com has lots of cartoons in French e.g. Garfield and The Smurfs.

Bilingual books

Amazon stocks lots of bilingual books. Alternatively, these websites are useful to either purchase from or to get some ideas:

- Alien Languages - http://www.alien-languages.com/7/bilingual books Child.aspx
- Language Lizard (American site but it's helpful for ideas) <https://www.language lizard.com/French-Bilingual-Children-s-Books-s/2479.htm>
